Dear Sir

I desire privately to say a few words to you upon a matter, of which we were speaking this morning. Mr. Pound has been here to see whether it would still be agreeable to me to have him in my Dept. provided you were willing to appoint him. Having once nominated him, I cannot consistently say that he would be of no use to us, for notwithstanding Llewellyn's appointment, I find it impossible to attend to my official duties properly, and at the same time keep to my old routine work as closely as the pressure demands. There must be skilled help added here or something must be neglected, - either regular or official work, so I have only put Mr. Pound off on the plea, that having once nominated him and found you unwilling (for reasons which I could not question) to appoint him, there was nothing left for me but to nominate another, (Dr. James) who was the only person I knew of possessing the required qualifications. You had promised to consider Dr. James, favorably when my own appointment had been secured; And while matters were thus unsettled I could not nominate Mr. Pound also, But I may now say to you, if Dr. James is for any reason not the man you want, then Mr. Pound is my next choice.

I must have some one of experience, to keep steadily at the gold balance which I still occupy. Mr. DuBois's experience and peculiar facility in working silver render it imperative that he should remain more particularly in supervision of this branch, as his father did. Yet even here, we are so pressed during large arrivals that we cannot always corroborate our assays as we would like to. The Omaha bars recently complained of would probably have assayed a little higher, had it not been that our pressure required us to report on the safe side. I am glad it turned out no worse.

Very Respectfully

Dear Sir

I desire privately to say a few words to you upon a matter, of which we were speaking this morning. Mr. Pound has been here to see whether it would still be agreeable to me to have him in my Dept. provided you were willing to appoint him. Having once nominated him, I cannot consistently say that he would be of no use to us, for notwithstanding Llewellyn's appointment, I find it impossible to attend to my official duties properly, and at the same time keep to my old routine work as closely as the pressure demands. There must be skilled help added here or something must be neglected, - either regular or official work. So I have only put Mr. Pound off on the plea, that having once nominated him and found you unwilling (for reasons which I could not question) to appoint him, there was nothing left for me but to nominate another (Dr. James) who was the only person I knew of possessing the required qualifications. You had promised to consider Dr. James favorably when my own appointment had been secured; And while matters were thus unsettled I could not nominate Mr. Pound also, but I may now say to you, if Dr. James is for any reason not the man you want, then Mr. Pound is my next choice.

I must have some one of experience to keep steadily at the gold balance which I still occupy. Mr. DuBois's experience and peculiar facility in working silver render it imperative that he should remain more particularly in supervision of this branch, as his father did. Yet even here, we are so pressed during large arrivals that we cannot always corroborate our assays as we would like to. The Omaha bars recently complained of would probably have assayed a little higher, had it not been that our pressure required us to report on the safe side, I am glad it turned out no worse.
